Some random thoughts

The Gospel writer, Luke, puts, in today's Gospel story, into the mouth of Mary, words that are completely subversive of both the Roman government and the Jewish hierarchy. God lifts the lowly and throws down the mighty; gives good things to the lowly and sends the mighty away empty. Humility and honesty are the two characteristics that every spirituality requires. Unfortunately, for us, humility and honesty are as slippery as eels. In many ways, humility and honesty have to find us, and the manner in which they find us can make us feel uncomfortable. If we are open to feeling the discomfort, humility and honesty have a chance to take root and grow. God is good.

Parish Updates: Most of the activities suspended with the COVID pandemic are resuming. Unfortunately, because of the uncertainty of what the colder weather will bring, we will not have our Parish Bazaar again this year. Like last year, we will offer the major raffle. I suspect that many of us miss the communal elements and interactions of the Bazaar. (I know that I do.) It does appear, however, that Faith Formation for our young people will be available in person. I am uncertain if the Scripture Study will continue. A final decision will be made soon.
